PREPARATION OF EXAMINATION PAPERS

Part B. Preparation and Writing of the Examination papers

1. Two versions of every examination must be produced for the exams. This can be asked by re-ordering questions as well as providing supplementary ones. This is required for make-up papers or for students with excused absent on the day.
2. A full and comprehensive answer sheet for each examination must be produced.

3. There is no need to produce a title for the examination, as there will be a full and detailed title page. The presiding section coordinator shall provide the title page.
4. Examination questions/items must be in correlation with the standards taught during the semester. You may use questions from the chapter and unit tests from the Assessment Guide book on condition that they were not previously given / administered.
5. Teachers who submit the two exam versions should submit a solved copy of the exam papers with their signature on both the exam paper and answer key.
6. All examinations must be word processed using the following criteria:
 - a. All scripts total items will be based on the percentage allocation for summative assessments required in the subject.
 - b. Margin should be standard. It can be narrowed to accommodate spaces required.
 - c. Font: Comic Sans MS.
 - d. Justify the type set.
 - e. Font size for Grade 1 to 4 must be 14, while higher grades can be 12.
 - f. 1.5 spacing between lines unless you require students to answer using sentence / paragraph / essay answers. In this case double space lines. Double spacing may also be more appropriate for Grades 1 to 4.
 - g. Add footer for marks per page (LHS) and page numbering (RHS).
 - h. Diagrams, maps, graphs must be in black and white (not color). This facilitates reprographics.
 - i. Ensure correct alignment throughout the examination paper.
 - j. Full, correct, accurate usage of English / American grammar / spelling. (Exceptions – Arabic and Islamic Studies).
 - k. Each section should have its value clearly indicated at the start. Each question should show its value.
 - l. Chapter / section clearly stated at the start of each question, where applicable and relevant.
 - m. Examination scripts should be sent to their respective HODs.
7. HODs should use the check sheet to ensure all examinations are correctly ordered and checked. Approved papers should be forwarded to the presiding examination officer for final editing, printing and photocopying.

GENERAL GUIDELINES

Part C. General Guidelines

1. All staffs are expected to check the invigilation timetable (issued to you) and be in the exam class at least 10 minutes before the time of the exam.
2. Proctors may not swap invigilating times without the prior approval of the examination supervisor.
3. Teachers should study the exam timetable and know what exam papers they have to mark. They should collect these papers on the same day and as soon as possible after the exam. They should count the papers and check that the count matches the expected number.

4. Marking: To prevent cheating, (i) follow the marking scheme accurately; (ii) use a red pen; (iii) put a slanting line through any unused part of a page; (iv) draw a cross through wrong answers; (v) give the reason for removing marks. Teachers may be asked to mark a few papers with the Head of Department. The Head of Department checks the marked papers after marking is completed.
5. End-of-term exam results (the actual papers as well as the marks copied on class-list sheets) should be handed in to the control room officer within 48 hours of the examination. Teachers should complete on the target deadlines.
6. All administrators are expected to complete the end of the term report until the scheduled deadlines. Teachers and administrators may extend time beyond office hours to complete the report.

GENERAL EXAMINATION FLOW

Part D. General Examination Flow

1. After the assembly, students go to the designated rooms for an hour of revision by the assigned teachers.
2. Ten minutes before the start of the exam, students and teachers go to their respective examination venues with their proctors. Exam coordinators should get the examination papers from the control room officer 30 minutes before the scheduled exam and hand them over to the proctors with the invigilation kit. Invigilation kit should include the policy, seating arrangement, attendance sheet and feedback form.
3. Proctors check the seating arrangement and ensure that examinees (students) only have the required materials on their table. Revision sheets, books, copy books must be placed at the designated areas of the examination rooms.
4. Proctors write on the white board the subject, time test start and time the test is expected to finish, list of absentees and list of presents.
5. Proctors distribute the exam
6. Students take the exam. Students are allowed to leave the examination room after an hour from the time they have started.
7. Proctors inspect the names of the students on the cover page. Then, fold the top right end of the paper covering the name with a staple pin. Proctors may provide some paper activities (crossword, puzzles and etc.) for students who finish the exam early. Students are not allowed to leave the examination room early.
8. At the end of the exam, proctors collect the papers and check the number of students present with the number of papers collected. If verified accurate, then the proctors may request the students to leave the room in an orderly manner with no disturbance.

9. Proctors complete the feedback form accurately. The examination papers must be placed inside the examination envelopes and should be handed over to the Section coordinators.
10. Section coordinators inspect the papers and stamp on it. In case the number of the papers does not match with the list of present; report the case immediately to the proctors to resolve the matter. If it is not resolved, report immediately to the examination supervisor for immediate action.
11. Section coordinators submit the feedback form and attendance sheet to the examination supervisor immediately after the papers have been verified complete. Examination papers will then be given to the control room officer for safe-keeping.
12. HODs collect the examination papers from control room officer for marking. Exam controller should ensure that exam papers are returned at the end of the day to the control room officer.
13. HODs check the accuracy of marking for approval. As soon as approved, teachers may remove the folds to reveal the name of students for recording purposes. The papers will then be returned to the exam instructors for safe keeping in the control room through the control room officer.

INVIGILATION ACTIVITIES

Part E. Invigilation Activities

1. Pre-Invigilation Activities.

- a. Class teachers should distribute parent's correspondence on the examination schedule at least three weeks before the schedule of the formal exam.
- b. Class teachers should explain the examination protocol to the students clearly. Each student must be given a copy of the protocol.
- c. Class teacher should make students aware of the examination venue and seating arrangement a week before the examination. The supervisor will arrange a schedule for rehearsal and the seating arrangement chart.
- d. All subject teachers should give a copy of the required materials and revision sheets two weeks before the exam. Thus, they should be submitted on time as shown in the schedule to ensure that they are thoroughly checked by the assigned examination committee members before they are provided to the parents.
- e. Proctors should study carefully the invigilation activities and should accurately execute the activities in order and on time.

2. During Invigilation.

- a. Proctors should follow the order of activities strictly and on time.
 - Check attendance in the order of seating chart
 - Distribution of examination script
 - Guiding in checking the correct number of pages and writing of names and other information indicated in the cover sheet.
 - Administering exam

- ❑ Script retrieval
- b. Grades 1 to 4 should be guided properly by reading instructions carefully. They should be accommodated based on their needs to properly measure their understanding.

3. Post Invigilation Activities.

- a. Proctors submit the completed examination scripts to the HODs for dispersal to subject teachers. Ensure that the flip area of the cover sheet is properly covered for objectivity while marking.
- b. Proctors prepare the examination report daily (Feedback form) by filling up the online form.

MARKING POLICY

Part F. Marking Policy / Procedure

1. Subject teachers should first mark the examination script on designated room within 48 hours. Weekends exempted. The assigned partner teacher to ensure accuracy within 48 hours should also second mark this.
2. Open-ended items must have clear and precise marking procedure, which should correlate to the standards and must be approved by the supervisor.
3. The marks obtained in the formal exam must be recorded as raw score under the final exam in the mark sheets. This should be reported in the grading sheet.
4. First marker should use red pen, second marker should use green pen while HOD will use black pen for final review.
5. The usage of Correctors or highlighters are prohibited

GENERAL SUPERVISORY GUIDELINES

Part G. General Supervisory Guidelines

1. If a student appears late, allow them to the examination room. All examinations can last up to 1, 1.5 or 2 hours. Therefore, any student may enter the examination up to 20 minutes late. However, no additional time will be allocated at the end of the session.
2. All staff should be proactive throughout the examinations. This means:
 - a. No sitting down during the examination
 - b. Walk through the rows and maintain vigilance
 - c. Warn any student who you have evidenced cheating and state that they will be further punished at this behavior continues.
 - d. Report any misconduct immediately to the proctor – this will need to be followed up with a written report in the case of extreme malpractice.

Infraction	Action	Follow-up
First	Verbal Warning	Mark on seating plan
Second	Verbal Warning + Written Note to Senior Proctor	Written notification to senior proctor
Third	Student to be removed from the examination	Full report from Staff Member and Proctor to Examination Committee

- e. Papers should only be collected on the designated time. Students who finish early should be encouraged to revisit their answers to ensure that they have the correct answers.

PROCTOR GUIDELINES

Part H. Proctors Guidelines

1. While invigilating (proctoring, monitoring) do not move around. To be effective teachers should stand, or sit in a high place and watch. Occasionally teachers may walk for a few minutes, but time it so that only one teacher moves around at a time.
2. Be vigilant. Students look for the moment when you are off your guard to cheat. Teachers may not talk, read or mark papers while invigilating.
3. Students are not allowed to borrow equipment. The moment they enter the exam room students should stop talking. Any attempt by a student to talk, turn, look around or make signs will be considered as cheating.
4. Students should answer 'written papers' in blue ink only from grades (4 – 9). Pencil may be used only for multiple choice papers, graphs or biological drawings and grades (Kg1 – 3). Other colors of ink are not allowed.
5. Do not answer students' questions. If you think a student has a valid question or objection please immediately raise it with the Head of the School. An error in an exam could affect students and it needs to be corrected immediately.
6. Report any cases of suspected cheating.
7. Going to toilet is only allowed from one hour after they have started answering the exam.
8. If the exam starts a few minutes late (which it shouldn't) the exam time should be extended by an equal amount. Students should get the full time indicated on the paper.
9. Do not leave the exam room until after the exam is over and until you are given permission to leave by the Head Invigilator. At the end of the exam the Head Invigilator needs help in collecting, sorting and counting papers.
10. When time is over be very vigilant. Any attempt by students to write after they are told to stop writing is considered as cheating. Students should stay in their seats. Collect all papers including rough paper from all students before they leave the exam hall.
11. If you face any urgent problem or issue during the exam, report it directly to the Head Invigilator.
12. Stay calm all the time and maintain a healthy examination environment.

Part I. Post Examination Activities

At the Beginning of the Following Term

1. Before the first lesson of the following term obtain an unsolved paper (blank papers) for review usage only to go over the answers with the students and explain them.
2. Go over the questions, giving in full detail the correct or expected answers together with the marks on each part, explaining exactly how the marks were distributed, and how much is removed for each type of error. (If a student has any objection to the marking, his objection is not looked into immediately.) They look at their papers to check if they have been allocated the marks they deserve. If not, they keep queries in mind till later.
3. If the lesson time ends before the discussion is finished the teacher should continue in the next period.
4. As soon as possible after the lesson the teacher goes over the queries, be they concerning errors in marking or addition errors. Where (s) he thinks that the student has a point the paper should be discussed with the Head of Department. If they agree to the change, the change should be entered into the computer as soon as possible, and the student should be informed.
5. The end-of-term exam papers have to be given back to Exams Officer for storing. These papers are kept in storage for three years before being destroyed.
6. Under no circumstances may guardians look at the exam questions of the end-of-term written papers of their wards. These exams are for assessment only and not for teaching.
7. With the end of year end-of-term exams (Final Exams) students may not have the chance to study the exam papers, so examiners have to be extremely careful in marking. Under no circumstances may guardians see the papers, but should they query a mark, the school should remark the paper. Under no circumstances should any teacher or administrator reveal the actual marks on final exams to the students. Students may only see their final grades when they receive the End-of-Year Reports. Any unusual request has to be discussed with the Director.
